Is It True What They Say? 1

The Talk

Is it true that the campus is one of the most beautiful in the state? Is it true that the students here don't have to go to an auditorium with 300 other students to take English 101? Is it true that the President was voted out of office? Is it true that UM has the oldest college tradition in the United States? YOU BET IT IS! The grapevine worked overtime this year spreading the news of the changes at the University of Montevallo.

Upon returning home for the Christmas holidays, many students encountered friends and relatives who gave them the third degree with questions such as, "What's going on at that school of yours? I heard there were student riots!" and "Someone told me that UM is being shut down. Is it true?" The students then tried to ease their nerves with the truth; however, many rumors persisted. Everyone was saying something different about UM; some things were true and others were not so true. One thing that the students learned is to never take someone elses words to be the absolute truth; they may not know what they are talking about. This is why UM students are answering the question: "IS IT TRUE WHAT THEY SAY?"

The Campus

One of the most remarkable aspects of the University of Montevallo is its campus. Part of the campus is registered in the National Registry of Historic Places.

The dorms underwent a face lift this year. Main was recarpeted; Tutwiler, refurnished; Lund, totally renovated. During the renovation of Lund, Brooke Hall was made into a co-ed dorm in order to house the residents of Lund.

The beauty of the age old halls such as Reynolds, Palmer, Calkins, and Main cause you to drift back in time to the days of 1896, when the school was founded. The cobblestone streets remind you of the horse drawn carriages that once crowded the streets, and the chimes ring out with ageless glory.

The Truth

In October, two-thirds of the faculty, including President Vickery himself, returned a no-confidence vote against the UM president. In December, 15 Vickrey opponents called on him to resign. What lead up to this? The Faculty contended that President Vickrey was not available to the faculty and that he did not lobby for funds from the legislature. Therefore, the faculty called for an immediate confidence vote.

Following this, the Board of Trustees hired Federic Ness, president emeritus of California State University at Fresno, to evaluate the situation and make a recommendation to solve the problem.

Finally, in March President Vickrey resigned his position. However, he was given full use of Flowerhill and his salary through May. The Board of Trustees then appointed Dr. John Stewart as acting president.

The School

Can UM students really get individual attention from the faculty? Is it true that the number of students in a class is only thirty? Yes! With approximately 2500 students and a faculty of about 300, students receive individual assistance. "In my Chemistry class this Spring," states Marcia Westry, "there are only six students. Therefore, we can each get all of our problems worked out in class. It really helps me to understand what is going on in there." A transfer student states, "it's a big change for the better from a class of 400 to a class of only 20 students. My grades have really benefited." With smaller classes the students are able to learn much more without the distractions found in other colleges. One faculty member stated that it is much easier to create an interesting and inquisitive atmosphere when dealing with thirty students rather than 100 or so. The students are not as afraid to speak out in class.

The main goal of any college is to teach its students to think. With smaller classes that allow for individual attention UM earned a reputation of excellence in higher education.

The Tradition

The most honored and beloved tradition at the University of Montevallo is College Night. Being the oldest college tradition that is totally produced by the students, College Night stands unrivaled for first place in the hearts and souls of students and alumni who consider it to be their own unique contribution to the school.

College Night began as a demonstration of the transition from a secondary school to a college. The class of 1919 held the first College Night on March 3, 1919. Word of mouth had dictated that College Night began as a celebration of Washington's birthday. At the time, the program was divided into four parts, each given by one of the classes.

Purple and Gold, decorations for the rival teams, were first used in 1920 as a part of the celebration of the school's twenty-fifth birthday. The very first performances were held on an improvised stage in a dining room. In 1927, not only were the performances held in the dining room, but the students put on a second performance for the benefit of the public in Reynolds Hall.

The program, itself, has changed with the passage of time. Before the 1950's, the evening's activities included yoeding, a pep song, a slow song, and a stunt, interwoven with music and marching cheers. In 1950 it was decided that each side would give one production in which songs, drama, comedy, dance, or any other feature would be integrated.

The Tradition

"Out, out damn spot!" rang throughout Palmer Hall in the Gold Production "Avon Calling" on the College Night, February 20, 1988.

Founders Day

Looking Ahead

On October 12, 1896, Alabama Girls Industrial School opened its doors to students in what is now Reynolds Hall, with Captain Henry Clay Reynolds as president.

Founders Day is the anniversary of the founding of the University of Montevallo. On this occasion, the seniors receive their caps and gowns for graduation. The event was held at the president's home, Flower Hill.

President James Vickrey encouraged the seniors to strive for the best until the very end.

Slip of the Lips

On November 18 the annual RHA Lip Sync Contest began one and a half hours late. The Lip Sync took place in the cafe and was headed by Callie Martens, the emcee. Mitch Edwards was the announcer for the evening. After hours of hilarious entertainment from female and male impersonators alike, the winners were announced. Ron Thorton won seventy-five dollars and first place for his impersonation of Tina Turner while lip syncing to "What's Love Got to Do?"

Fright Night

Senior March

At the stroke of midnight on November 9, the thirteenth chime rang out signifying impending doom for all female underclassmen. Seniors draped in black with painted faces stormed the dorms in search of unsuspecting girls. The underclassmen were told to crawl on their hands and knees down stairways. After marching the girls to Tutwiler quad, the seniors paraded the unknowing victims in a circle while crushing eggs on their heads, showering them with shaving cream and flour, and demanding individuals to lay on the ground and shake their bodies with the phrase, "Fry Like bacon!!"

SHOOT OUT

After suffering through a disappointing 9-19 season last year, Montevallo's men's basketball team found a more promising 1987-88 campaign under third year coach Rob Spivery. "This is by far the most talented squad I have had here at Montevallo," said Spivery. "If the players mold together and play well, as a unit, we could be a very good basketball team and a tough team to beat."

Spivery's prediction came true. The 1987-1988 Falcon basketball team qualified for the District 27 playoffs for the first time in years thanks to a 19-10 record.

The Falcon's were one of only two teams to upset National runner-up Auburn-Montgomery. The 19 victories set a new record for the most wins in a season in Falcon history.

Bobby Joe Jackson was chosen for the NAIA All-American team. Jackson and Lewis Brooks received District 27 honors.

THE ENERGIZERS

UM cheerleaders continue each year cheering our athletic teams to victory after victory! The 1987-1988 cheerleading squad was extremely motivated. Self-direction and self-execution led to two new routines, both of which called for precision and excellent skills.

Cheerleading builds school spirit and morale tremendously. The Falcon cheerleading squad carries a good deal of status and has fought for membership. Dee Kent is very proud to be a part of this group. She stated, "A lot of hard work and dedication went in to improving the squad. Although we sacrificed a lot for cheerleading, I think it paid off this year, especially with the crowd support and Falcon winning season." Tenalee Henley added, "Because of the squad's dedication, I feel we continued to improve as the season progressed. It also meant a lot to me that nine girls could draw together and care for each other as we did."

Many thanks to our UM cheerleaders' enthusiasm and spirit which played a big part in the victorious season!

Behind the Desk

It was a year of questions both answered and unanswered among the faculty and administration. With students starting classes on September 2, teachers dealt with a new influx of potential lawyers, historians, teachers, managers, and social workers. Thus in accepted form, teachers questioned students with tests, exams, papers, and projects.

However, not all questioning was on the student/teacher level. Authority was also questioned on the upper level and the power of opposition mounted as teachers and professors went "to the polls" for a confidence/no confidence vote on president, Dr. James Vickery, during the fall semester. Yet it was spring that brought the decision of a resignation and ended the presidential problem on campus.

Yet questions were not just limited to academic areas. "What is that?" became a common question to cafeteria staff as new entrees such as gyro added to the list of cuisine.

So, the solution was simple. Education was the goal and faculty, administration, and staff implemented, assisted, and aided the process. Whether private conferences, class discussions, drop/add, gardening, or daily menus, all the faculty and staff pulled together to get things in shape "from behind the desk."

FALSE ALARMS: A RUDE AWAKENING

There she was: Normal Norma, a Main dormitory resident, totally unexpecting the fate that awaited her. Settled in bed, sheltered from the late night and cool early morning temperatures of the Fall weather, she slept. Just that evening Norma decided to turn in early, hoping to get a good night's sleep. Little did she know that her comfort was short-lived.

It might have been 3:00 a.m., 4:00 a.m., or 5:00 a.m.; Norma didn't know. She only knew what had started as a peaceful night had become a nightmare. It started. Its loud obnoxious roar echoed off the halls of Main while girls in various stages of bedtime preparation scurried downstairs and out of the building in pursuit of the steps of Palmer. Her first reaction was total fear: "AIR RAID! HIT THE DECK! THE COMMIES ARE COMING TO GET US!" But as her sleeping stage wore off, Norma realized the cause of the chaos was only the fire alarm.

The sit was long and cold on the steps of Palmer waiting for yet another false alarm to be over. As the sun came up, Normal Norma reentered Main with a couple of hours of sleep left before officially starting a new day. She hoped that the nightmare agony was over, but to her surprise, it was only beginning . . .

DIALING IN BIG BUCKS

Reaching out to touch someone led to mixed emotions as students experienced the newly implemented AT&T college and university phone systems.

The nightmare began at room check-in when students received the ticket to endless bills and heartache — the ACUC card. Soon, sixty-five dollar phone bill limits, deactivated access codes, and bills of unspeakable amounts became familiar among card holders.

Some resorted to abandoning that long distance fever and limiting calls to only random collect calls home from residence halls' pay phones.

Yet most kept the card. For them it was the plastic means of long distance freedom, another mode of communication. So, even though bills poured in, friendly fingers kept walking.

COMBATTING THE FRESHMAN FIFTEEN

They had all been warned: that first college semester away from home would bring fifteen unwanted and almost impossible to shed pounds. From then on everyone found ways to avoid that inevitable fate — the FRESHMAN FIFTEEN — which brought the word "exercise" to the lips of numerous freshmen.

Exercise became the solution and was inserted into the daily routine in various ways. For instance, many a freshman found that running down the hall to beat the morning rush to the shower burned a considerable amount of calories. With every phone sounding alike, running to their rooms screaming "Is that my phone?" equated the caloric intake of at least six OREO cookies. Yet the most effective form of exercise took place out of the residence hall. Taking that "little" nap between 9:00 and 11:00 classes sometimes led to oversleeping (not intentionally, of course) leaving freshmen to sprint across campus to their respective building.

Thus, more than jogging and walking became accepted means of exercise. Although some had escaped the additional weight, no one survived the year side-stepping or attempting to avoid the "plague of the pounds."

Greeks

—Panhellenic and Interfraternal— Councils

"Panhellenic is the governing body of the Greeks," explained Susan McCullar, the University of Montevallo's 1987-88 Panhellenic president.

"Panhellenic tries to achieve intrasororial fellowship and appreciation among it's members." McCullar said. That is to say that Panhellenic provides a way for all the sororities on campus to meet and get to know each other.

"Besides that, it really keeps a lot of jealousy out from among the sororities," McCullar said. Once the sororities have had a chance to get to know each other and understand how they each are similar as well as different they are better able to accept each other.

The National Panhellenic Council was organized May 24, 1902 to set national rules among sororities. The rules regard rush, Greek Week and intramural activities. They simply state how many girls can be accepted through rush each semester and they set up guidelines for game rules and roster regulations.

If these rules are broken, then the offending sorority is fined, usually in the form of a service project. Panhellenic also works in cooperation with the Interfraternal Council (IFC) which was set up in 1909 for similar purposes.

One advantage to being a member of the panhellenic is publicity for the sorority. Panhellenic provides each sorority with rush pamphlets which explain the history of each and what it stands for.

All but one of Montevallo's sororities is involved in Panhellenic," said McCullar. Disadvantages to not being a member are that the sorority is not able to participate in Greek Week or receive funding for rush. Both functions are funded by dues. Each sorority supports Panhellenic by requiring each of their members to pay $1 a month. The IFC, on the other hand, is funded by rush dues.

The Panhellenic Council and the IFC are responsible for enforcing and upholding all the rules, and are made up of representatives from each sorority and fraternity. The representatives are elected by their sorority or fraternity, these positions rotate yearly.

"Panhellenic and Interfraternal Councils are the governing bodies of the Greeks."

—Squeal—
—Day—

On the afternoon of Squeal Day, girls huddled together excitedly on the steps of Palmer Hall holding hands and wishing each other the best. The girls had been through a week of parties hosted by the sororities. During this time the girls were on their best behavior trying to make a good impression. This practice is formally called "rush".

Squeal Day is the "big day" when the rushees find out if they received bids from the sororities of their choice. As the panhellenic members approached to read the names and distribute the envelopes containing the bids, silent prayers were raised in hopeful anticipation.

With shaking hands each girl opened her envelope. After seeing their bids, the rushees ran to their sorority hall. On each hall the sisters of each sorority anxiously awaited their new pledges.

"I got it!!"
A rushee bursts with excitement when she sees that she got a bid from the sorority she wanted.

"Kim Ladnier!"
Panhellenic members call out the names on the envelopes containing the bids.

—INTRA-MURALS—

"Reach for the sky!"
Volleyball is one of the intramural sports for the women.

"Catch that ball!!"
Football is one of the intramural sports for the men's teams.

"Yea-a-ah!!"
Emotions flow when each rushee opens her envelope and sees her bid.

"Intramurals bring the campus organizations closer together."

— Ashelie White

Intramurals? What are intramurals? According to Dr. Frank Lightfoot, director of the University of Montevallo intramurals, "they are just a good way for the kids to go out and have some fun and recreation." Yet, to most people on campus, intramurals is the sheer joy of competition.

Jeff Haley and Brian "Sparky" Kirk are the student directors of intramurals. They make sure game rules are inforced as well as registration rules, and they help provide refs from each participating organization.

When asked who can participate in intramurals Haley said, "Anybody who can get a team together." Of course, there are always the fraternities and sororities but also included are dorm teams and commuter teams along with one consistant independent team, the Ata Moon Pies.

The sports in which a team may participate are volleyball, basketball, softball and football for the guys.

The purpose of intramurals is to provide campus wide recreation and fellowship. Since its beginning, intramurals has become a source of fun and friendship for all involved.
